

PHOTO GALLERY

PERSIAN FALLOW DEER

A radio-collared reintroduced fallow deer. This photograph by Shirli Bar-David. All other photographs by Eyal Bartov.

This endangered species is the subject of an ongoing reintroduction project taking place in the Galilee, northern Israel. The photographs supplement the article by Shirli Bar-David, David Saltz, and Tamar Dayan, "Predicting the spatial dynamics of a reintroduced population—the Persian fallow deer," which will appear in Ecological Applications 15(5), October 2005.

A 5th century(!) mosaic, found in Israel, portrays a leopard killing a Persian fallow deer.

