2006 Midwest Ecology and Evolution Conference (MEEC)

The Conference will be held 17–19 March 2006, hosted by St. Louis University. MEEC is an annual, migratory conference organized by and for graduate students and postdocs. The conference is an excellent opportunity for students to network with others, learn about research being done in the Midwest, and present their own research in a relaxed and low-key environment. This year's conference is particularly collaborative because of the proximity and involvement of the University of Missouri-St. Louis and Washington University. Registration by 15 January is $40; late registration until 30 January is $50. Information on registration, abstract submission, events, and field trips can be found at <http://wallace.slu.edu/meec2006/>.
